- 2) If the mortgage loan is in excess of $500,000, meaning the insured mortgage balance is less than the mortgage loan amount at the effective date of insurance (due to the Maximum Amount of Insurance), the death benefit will be determined by dividing the mortgage balance insured by the mortgage loan amount at the effective date of insurance and then multiplying that number by the outstanding balance of the insured mortgage at the date of death (including accrued interest from the date of death to a maximum of 60 days). For example, you were insured for $500,000 on a $750,000 mortgage loan, at the date of death the outstanding balance is $300,000, the death benefit is $200,000 (including accrued interest from the date of death to a maximum of 60 days) $$500,000/$750,000 = 0.66 \times $300,000 = $200,000$; AND

Once the maximum benefit has been paid, no further insurance is available in respect of such mortgage loan.

Your application is declined due to health reasons. In this example, Canada Life will insure 25% of the new outstanding balance at the time of claim. [$$50,000 / $200,000 \times 100 = 25\%$]
